Dismissed School closing rallies residents

By BOB DENYS
ANP Staff Writer

The Romulus School District received approval from the Michigan Department of Education to eliminate more than $700,000 in costs which includes the salaries of 20-30 staff members.

The announcement came from School Superintendent Dr. William Bedell at the meeting of school board members last Monday night.

A decision about the proposed closure of Hayti Elementary School was postponed as "more planning is needed," Bedell said. Several outraged parents from the Hayti neighborhood attended the meeting and this week, area residents began a petition drive in an attempt to stop the closure.

Major budget reductions would come from increasing class sizes by two or more students. According to Bedell, the present average is 17. However, Chris Powers, president of the teacher's union and teacher at Hayti, said some class sizes top 30 students.

Other budget cuts include reducing the number of department heads, reduction of computer use and elimination at the elementary level, elimination of the Headstart subsidy, a reduction in book purchases, a reduction in testing programs and several other cuts.

Although several parents and teachers expressed opposition to cuts in these areas, by far the most outspoken critics of the proposed budget cuts came from Hayti area residents.

"Hayti is a small community school which provides many needs aside from education for the entire neighborhood. Our side of town has already lost two elementary schools as both Gordonier and Beverly were closed in recent years," said one concerned parent during the meeting. Cory and Wick are the only elementary schools remaining north of the I-94 freeway.

"We don't want to ship our kids all over the city. I can see the school from my front porch," said one concerned parent during the meeting.

According to Bedell, closing Hayti, the oldest and smallest city school, would save almost $200,000 annually and provide "better instructional services" at the other more modern school facilities. The closing would affect 275 students and 18-19 staff members.

"We just removed all that asbestos from the school. We didn't vote a maintenance millage for other city schools. We voted 1.5 mills for our school, Hayti. Without a local school, there go our property values," said another resident.

"It's a more family oriented school. Since 1959, all five of my children have earned their education at Hayti," said Nan Meyers, a resident of the area.

Hayti Principal Charles Shamey attended the meeting and said afterward, "There's a very, very strong sense of community here. Mayor Beverly McNally rose through the ranks of the Parent Teacher Organization in Hayti. The history of the school dates back to 1843 when it was located on Henry Ruff Road. It's been moved several times since. The school has a pleasantness and the surroundings are beautiful. However, the neighborhood has become increasingly industrial. But you can't forget the residents.

"As far as what will happen to my position, I don't know. At this point nothing is concrete. Let's do what's best for the kids," he said.

A Hayti Parent Teacher Organization meeting was conducted last night where the impending closure was discussed.

Oakbrook chop shop shut down

Romulus police raided a local chop shop operation Sunday, but circumstances surrounding the discovery were most unusual.

After Stanley Lewis Clinton, 36, was arrested, he was arraigned on Monday in 34th District Court before Judge James Stone. Bond was set at $5,000 and a preliminary examination scheduled for March 25.

"Somebody in the downriver court obtained a civil judgment against Clinton in February. When the court bailiff came out to execute the order and seize enough of Clinton's personal property to satisfy the outstanding debt, he found a substantial number of car parts and called us," Romulus Police Lt. Ken Kraus said.

After police investigated, car parts were found from several stolen cars, specifically a van, car and motorcycle. None were owned by Romulus residents, police noted. A search warrant was obtained before Clinton was arrested. He was charged with operating a chop shop out of his garage.

The maximum penalty for this felony on the first offense is five years in prison and not more than $5,000. On the second offense, the minimum penalty is five years in prison and no less than $10,000.

Community hospital under fire

By BOB DENYS
ANP Staff Writer

Community concern about a full-service hospital escalated after the recent Metropolitan Airport disaster where nine lives were lost.

During the regular meeting of the members of the Romulus City Council last week, a resident from nearby Westland addressed council members about the seriousness of the situation.

Nancy Neal, teacher at Stephenson High School, told the council members, "Please check the facts I have given you. With the sale of Westland Medical Center to the Peoples Community Hospital Organization, the only trauma center in the entire area was abolished. This is a densely populated area. The effect could be catastrophic."

Romulus Councilman William Wadsworth wholeheartedly agreed. In his job as a Wayne County Sheriff deputy he said he is concerned about the welfare of large numbers of critically injured people.

Wadsworth was the first official on the crash scene and the first to recognize potential problem with nearby emergency facilities.

"A total of 23 people were sent to Westland Medical Center. Fourteen or 15 of those people were turned away and re-routed to Annapolis and Heritage hospitals. What if 50 or 300 people were injured? What would we do?" he said.

Neal recalled an unfortunate incident during the past summer when an emergency patient required a cardiologist and died during the several hour wait before one arrived.

"It's next to impossible to get emergency treatment there," she said. "Basically, the emergency room has a very skeletal staff. The level of service was frightening."

According to Neal, there are only half a dozen emergency trauma centers in the Detroit Metropolitan Area. Now there is one less and none nearby, the closest being Ann Arbor or downtown Detroit.

"What if a small jet goes down in a residential neighborhood? And 30-40 people need immediate care? We're talking life or death. There's no problem with routine medical care in our local facilities.

"In the Metro crash, those passengers who didn't exit within the first few minutes, died. Only one survivor was burned badly. During my 19 years with the sheriff, if someone's injuries were fatal, we always took them to Westland Medical Center. I don't think the community understands how serious this is," Wadsworth explained.

"I am not an alarmist but I don't think people want to be shuffled to another hospital because somebody in an ambulance arrived minutes before them," said Neal.

Cheaper by two dozen Richardson family breeds success

By BOB DENYS
ANP Staff Writer

Generations of family history were built into the Richardson house on Delano Street. F.B. Williams grew up and was raised here by his mother, Lorraine, and step-father, George Richardson. Williams, 77, now lives two streets over on Grover.

His natural father died long before he could remember and when he was two years old, his mother remarried. Although never adopted, he assumed the strength and dignity accorded each Richardson family member.

And there were lots of them. George Richardson modeled his Delano Street home after one his own father built in the town of Whittaker in Washtenaw County. Here he was born and raised with 23 brothers and sisters.

Two of those children, George and Arthur, moved to Romulus during World War I. They were, according to the Williams, the fourth and fifth "colored" families to settle here.

F.B. Williams noted that his step-dad built one of the first gas stations in the city at the corner of Goddard and Delano. His family moved from Belleville to Romulus in 1917. At that time, according to Williams, the black families already here, were Mrs. White who lived in a home where Manufacturing Bank stands, the Manamaus family who lived on Whitehorn and their next door neighbors.

romulus roots

Arthur would raise his family in a large farm house on the hilltop at the corner of Wayne Road and Bibbins Street. His daughter, Dorothy Vaughn, also 77, of Wharman Road, noted she and F.B. have lived in Romulus longer than any other black residents.

Her daughter, Marilyn Williams of Garner Street, no blood relation to F.B. is the family's proud caretaker of small worn biographical

Willett, Day named to posts at Associated Newspapers

David J. Willett, president and publisher of Associated Newspapers last week announced the promotion of two staff members to new positions with the organization.

Ray Day has been named as managing editor of all six newspapers published by the Associated group, including The Wayne Eagle, The Westland Eagle, The Canton Eagle, The Inkster Ledger-Star, The Romulus Roman and the 100-year-old Belleville Enterprise.

In his new capacity, Day will be responsible for the news content and design of the papers along with the supervision of the newsroom staff. In making the announcement of Day's promotion, Willett said, "Day is the kind of guy who makes everyone else's job more difficult, ...he works long and hard to make our newspapers the best they can be. In so doing he sometimes makes others pale in comparison. If I were a reporter, I could learn to hate this young super star. He's good at what he does, and he just keeps getting better. I'm delighted to be able give his kind of "light" a pillar from which to shine," Willett said.

Day's career rise at Associated has been somewhat remarkable, the publisher continued. He began as a cable programmer 2 1/2 years ago and moved from that position to doing some free-lance writing. Day then took on the responsibilities of a staff writer and was promoted to news editor only one year ago. Willett noted that Day, "is one of the best investments in talent and training we have ever made. Once in awhile in this business you come across a talent like Ray Day. We are fortunate to have him and I feel that our readers, too, have benefited from his abilities."

Willett also announced the promotion of Susan C. Willett to general manager of the newspaper group. She formerly served as executive editor at Associated and will continue her involvement in the production of the editorial product. In her new assignment, Willett will oversee the daily operations of all facets of the business, and report directly to the publisher.

In announcing the promotion of his wife to this new job, Willett appeared somewhat cautious in choosing his words. "Susan has an understanding of our business that few seem to ever obtain. She has cloned Day, and having done so, I can hardly wait to see what her efforts on the revenue side will create. It is difficult at best for me to be candid about this move. I can say to our readers and advertisers in all sincerity, 'you ain't seen nothin' yet'. The fact that she is the joy of my existence certainly has no bearing on my judgment in the matter," he added with a smile.

Richardson

account of grandpa George Richardson. Written from an interview with a "gentleman caller" and published after his death in 1921, many fascinating details and much insight is given into the prosperous life of the son of "fugitive slaves."

Queen Elizabeth Kersey is one of the five Richardson children still living. She has on occasion preached before the congregation at Parks Memorial Church A.M.E. in Romulus. Several years younger than her local niece and nephew, she recalled some family history from her Ypsilanti home.

Her great-grandparents were white slaveholders, she said. "All white," she stressed. "My dad was born in Dresden, Ontario. He married twice and his first wife died after their fourth child. My mother was the mother of 21. One had died."

In the account by the "gentleman caller," George Richardson explained that he is part colored man, part white man and part Indian and whatever cussedness is in him, must have come from the Indian.

He also philosophized that "it keeps a woman in good health to have plenty of children."

"My dad was somebody. Our house had 21 rooms. He owned over 500 acres and raised herds of dairy cattle, not just one or two. He really farmed. It was wonderful being part of a large family. I always wished I had as many," she said.

George Richardson was, according to the "gentleman caller," the best known black farmer in Whittaker and characterized "by his lively stride and happy-go-lucky manner."

He started with $1 and a brass watch and accumulated over $20,000 of fine farm land and livestock. The farm had several barns, a milk house, silo, windmill and its own generator which produced hot and cold running water.

"Even though I'm colored," he said, "I had no trouble finding white people to trust me especially after I began making a name for myself."

F.B. Williams followed the strength of his family heritage. He discontinued school at the age of 15 and sold newspapers for 50 cents a week. He worked on the Downey Farm on Tobine Road. For several years, he

Full steam ahead

Artrain changes city into cultural center

By BOB DENYS
ANP Staff Writer

When Romulus residents heard Artrain was coming into town, earth moved, trees uprooted and siding was torn-off a building.

The announcement by both Michigan and the Downriver Council for the Arts that Romulus would be the first stop on a 26-city tour celebrating the state sesquicentennial hit the city with hurricane force.

With exactly two weeks until opening day, various city departments, businesses and organizations are busily scurrying everywhere to prepare for this major event.

Sponsors have selected the site behind the Post Office and the old 1839 District 1 Schoolhouse. A once nondescript shabby field has been transformed into a vibrant city center. Many residents beam with pride anticipating the Artrain stop.

Members of the Romulus Historical Society diligently removed most of the red asbestos siding from their beloved school just last weekend. The week before, employees from the Department of Public Works leveled ground and dug up several scraggly trees.

In the next week, DPW workers will erect a boardwalk and platform for Artrain visitors. Directional signs will also be placed through Romulus. A large carnival tent will soon cover much of the cleared area.

Adjacent facilities to the site will provide parking. Hunt Street traffic will flow only one way, north.

Downtown merchants are scrubbing, primping and manicuring their little corner of Romulus as hundreds and hundreds of visitors are expected.

"This is a real opportunity for people and businesses to take pride in their community. Preparation for Artrain is moving right along," said Kristine Detroyer of the Romulus Arts Council.

The Romulus Arts Council will host the opening ceremonies of Artrain at 5 p.m. with a ribbon-cutting at the site. Local dignitaries, representatives from Artrain and the Michigan Sesquicentennial will officiate.

A reception from 6-8 p.m. at the Romulus Holiday Inn will follow. Everybody is invited to attend both historic events.

Artrain is the only national art museum on a train. This year, an exhibition from Cranbrook Academy of Art, Michigan's highly acclaimed arts and education center will honor the state sesquicentennial.

The collection called, "The Cranbrook Vision: Past and Present," includes such treasures as paintings, drawings, sculptures, furniture, tapestries, ceramics and silver work.

Artrain is composed of five cars, three gallery cars, a studio car for local artist demonstrations and a caboose. According to Artrain spokespersons, Artrain began touring 16 years ago. They have visited 28 states and welcomed 2 million visitors.

Visitors will have the good fortune to witness the painting of the exterior of the train. Tours last 45 minutes and begin with a seven minute audio-visual introduction.

Several substantial contributions have eased the burden of local organizations. The Days Inn, Holiday Inn and Quality Inn are all donating rooms during the week long event. Manufacturers Bank allowed the insertion of fliers into monthly bank statements. Hudson's donated almost $2,000 for "community service costs."

Lionel Trains donated a model system which will be available to any group or organization who want to use it.

This Saturday has been designated "Clean-up Day" by local officials. Any organization or individual interested in sprucing up the future Artrain site is encouraged to participate. All aboard! Artrain will stay in Romulus through Sunday, March 29.

Drug overdose suspected in death

By BOB DENYS
ANP Staff Writer

Romulus police suspect an Olympia Village apartment resident may have died from a drug overdose early Sunday morning.

Brenda Kay Tonson, 29, of Merriman Road was apparently dead-on-arrival when police responded to a call from her live-in boyfriend at 8:44 a.m.

Her body was transported to the Wayne County Medical Examiner who will release a report after an autopsy.

Apparently, police said, her nearest relative is her mother who lives in Chicago. They have been unable to locate her for notification.

When the boyfriend called, police said, he reported his live-in girlfriend appeared to be dead.

He reported that Saturday night the two of them consumed beer and wine. He apparently said he took no drugs and nor did she. However, police noted several needle scars were present on the body of Tonson. There was no evidence of other bodily injury on her.

The boyfriend said he fell asleep on the couch about 9 p.m. and did not wake until early morning when he found Tonson in the bathroom. He stated he carried her to the bed and returned to the couch.

When he awoke again, he discovered her dead body. He further reported one of his two cars missing which police found abandoned in Dearborn with a flat tire.

"Preliminary investigation indicates she died of a drug overdose," police reported. They will continue their investigation, according to a police spokesman.

Police also noted that Tonson had lived in that location for about a year. She was employed with the Beverly Convalescent Center in Wayne for less than two months according to a spokesperson.

Romulus Girl Scouts joined hands and recited their pledge at exactly 4 p.m. on Thursday in unison with their fellow members from around the world. They were celebrating the 75th anniversary of the founding of Girl Scouts. After they sang songs, munched on candy and gobbled up ice cream and cake, they went outside and released balloons commemorating the historic event. Pictured above are Michelle Slawinski, left and Tiffney Wilson, just two of the happy scouts at Cory Elementary. Over at Barth School, weekend phone calls from far away places notified happy troop members that their balloons were already found. Jamie McGlynn received a call from Ho-Ho Cus, New Jersey, Colleen Foley's balloon was found in New Hampshire, Linda Tomchicks' in Avon, Ohio, Brandy DeHarts' in Allentown, Pennsylvania, Kendra O'Daniels' the Poconos Mountains, Pennsylvania and the balloons of April Krey and Elizabeth Welts traveled all the way around the world, according to troop leader, Kristine Detroyer, because they were found in Romulus. Eureka road improvement funds set

The future of Eureka Road is paved with good intentions but now the solution is concrete, as a result of action taken by the Romulus City Council last week.

In order to be included in the Wayne County Federal Aid Urban System, the county engineer, G.E. Siemert asked council members to adopt a resolution which would authorize partial funding from the city of Romulus.

County participation in the federal project requires Romulus to fund 12 percent of the $75,000 per lane mile cost. Cost to the city has been established at $13,500.

The project would resurface Eureka Road between Middlebelt Road and Colbert Street, approximately 1.44 miles, according to Siemert.

The estimated project cost is $108,000.

According to Wayne County Surfacing Program guidelines, approximately four inches of concrete would be laid over the existing base.

Romulus Public Works assistant director, Ray Striz noted, that the base would be repaired where needed. "The county will begin the program as soon as the weather breaks. The city does not know where Eureka Road is on their priority list. By participating now in this program, the city was given a better percentage rate of the total cost," he said.

Previous rates established the city share at $25,000 per mile.

Completion time for the project, according to the county, is tentatively scheduled for 1987 through 1990.

Conference set

Poole calls for quick action solving area waste problems

By JOAN MARY DYER
Belleville City Editor

Canton Township Supervisor James Poole called for a "take action" gathering of area officials when he announced a multi-organization meeting on waste disposal problems at the March meeting of the Conference of Western Wayne.

The Canton supervisor, who has been critical of the current status of waste disposal plans, said the 9 a.m. April 3 meeting at Fellows Creek Golf Course is intended to "get off dead center" on the solid waste issue. Pollution, garbage and sewage may not be good topics for breakfast conversation, Poole said, but it is necessary for the communities to meet at this time to list possible solutions and to recommend an approach to the problem.

"We have to do something and, hopefully, we can get some direction and an idea of where to do," Poole said.

In a February communication to the CWW, Poole emphasized that the meeting was "not to study the problem, not to talk about the problem, not to think about the problem," but to list solutions. "I am afraid some communities are not that interested, and in five years or less we will have an extremely severe problem with garbage because this is a very unpopular subject and one which is going to cost the taxpayers a considerable amount of money."

"The time for thinking about it is past. The time for a plan is running out," Poole continued. "The time for studying is past. The time for doing something is now. The time for talking about it is past. The time for taking action is now."

Poole indicated that communities that approached the problem individually could be "doomed." It is not fiscally possible for each community to go its own way, he said. Poole suggested that an authority or two or three authorities could be formed.

In addition to the CWW, invitations to the conference have been sent to the Downriver Community Conference, the Wayne County commissioners, Wayne County Solid Waste Board, League of Women Voters, County Executive Edward McNamara and Congressmen William Ford, John Dingell, Sander Levin and Carl Purcell.

Rouge to get 1987 'rescue'

Successful efforts to clean up the Rouge River last year have prompted the scheduling of a second Rouge Rescue operation on June 6.

Bonnie Anderson, Friends of the Rouge executive director, announced an expanded cleanup effort at the March 13 meeting of the Conference of Western Wayne.

Anderson reported that some 2,100 volunteers participated in the Rouge Rescue '86 at 14 sites. The volunteers from social, church, civic and school organizations removed debris and logs from the river in the day-long operation. Two additional cleanup sites are scheduled this year, she told the CWW members.

The participation of local governments is being sought to assure an effective cleanup campaign. Educational activities are planned in the schools to promote Rouge Rescue '86. These activities may include hands-on projects and contests, according to Anderson.

"By the year 2000," Anderson said, "the Friends of the Rouge would like the river to be swimmable and fishable."

Anderson said the affected area is more widespread than many people believe. The river originates in the Walled Lake-Bloomfield area and its tributaries extend through a 500 square-mile area with a population of one and one-half million people. In past years, the river became an open sewer when residents along its banks tossed trash into it and an overflow of sewage seeped into its waters. Because of the number of old household appliances found in it, the Rouge River was dubbed by some as "Low Water Appliance."

Anderson said that individuals who wish to join the cleanup efforts by joining the Friends of the Rouge may send their names and addresses to the organization at 13325 Farmington Road, Livonia, Mich. 48150. Cost of an individual membership is $5, the family fee is $10 and clubs and associations may join for a $25 fee. Corporation memberships are $100.

Members will receive status reports and updates of Rouge events, a newsletter and invitations to educational and recreational field trips.

Suit settled with convalescent center

Following lengthy litigation over an incinerator operated by the Van Buren Convalescent Center, an agreement has been reached to shut down the incinerator.

According to Ronald Chapman, attorney for Mr. and Mrs. David Slovik, the clients first filed a nuisance complaint claiming that the center was polluting the environment by the operation of the incinerator. The litigation he said, proceeded through several motions and hearings on an injunction to enjoin the operation. On Jan. 1, Chapman reached an agreement with the new owners of the convalescent center. Specifically, he said, the incinerator is to be immediately shut-down. The agreement is enforceable against the current owners and future owners.

Chapman said any future use of the incinerator must comply with new regulations adopted by the State Air Quality Control Division.

Product of the '80s
Day care emerges as a 'substitute mother'

By RAY DAY
ANP Managing Editor

As mothers in the 1980s more and more step out of the home and into their careers, day care centers increase in importance in the raising of a new society, according to Jan Roberson, director of the Gerber Children's Center in Canton Township.

Gerber is just one of a growing number of the centers popping up in the area and contributing to the new trend in child care. But despite the stereotype babysitter-image the centers were given in the 1960s and '70s, day care centers today can more importantly be considered a place of "higher education."

"The thing with day care is that it goes from 6:30 a.m. to 6 p.m. We offer a full range of programs to whatever the mother needs," Roberson explained. "Where a nursery school generally sets hours of 9:30-11, we operate programs all day long."

Gerber, known best as the producers of a line of baby food, has been in the day-care business for about two years now, Roberson said. The corporate push to expand into the child-raising business began just prior to Gerber's start in the field, Roberson said, as businesses began to recognize the societal shift in child care of the mid-1970's.

"I think the general growth of these centers started in the mid-1970s. The main reason behind this is that there are more working women leaving the home," said Roberson. "The parents who bring their children here can develop their own schedule to fit their needs."

But parents who bring their children to Gerber aren't just dropping their kids off in the morning and picking them back up at night, Roberson explained. Instead, these parents are introducing their children to a school environment, one in which the learning-through-games theory is heavily stressed.

"The whole attitude here is to give the children a kind of substitute home. We always have a project for the day, story hours, nap times, snacks and lessons," Roberson said. "Gerber's philosophy is to have a structure program that teaches children to learn through playing."

The learn-through-playing technique is achieved by implementing a variety of educational games and exercises which stress colors, shapes and a child's ability to function with others.

Children ages 12 months to 10 years are eligible to participate in the Gerber programs. Fees are determined individually based on each parent's schedule and needs. The center is located at 3101 N. Lilley Road, near Ford, in Canton Township. For more information, call 981-3222.

One of the new businesses on Main Street in Belleville is the Short Stop II Coney Island owned by Phil and Connie Phillips. The Phillips sponsored a opening celebration at the restaurant and served their specialty along with baklava for dessert to their guests. The restaurant features breakfast all the time and is open between 6 a.m. and 9 p.m. on weekdays and from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. on weekends.

Tax break OK'd by township board

A 12-year, 50 percent tax abatement was granted for the third through fifth phases of the L&W Engineering project in Van Buren Township. The new project at 6201 Haggerty Road will increase the 50,000 square foot facility by 75,000 square feet of warehouse and metal stamping area. Phases one and two of the project are "almost 100 percent" completed, according to a L&W spokesman. All that remains to finish is the required tree planting. In a letter to the township board, Scott Hedberg wrote, "We anticipated with the previous Industrial Facilities Exemption Certificate request to create 30 jobs. We have added 130 jobs, a 333 percent increase. With this request we estimate creating 75 jobs in Van Buren Township." Construction is expected to begin in April with completion scheduled in 12 months.

Neptune's: Good taste easy to 'sea'

By JOAN MARY DYER
Belleville City Editor

Although Neptune's Seafoods has just recently surfaced on Haggerty Road, owner Ralph Otterson is already expanding his facilities.

Adjacent to the restaurant, which seats 90 customers, Otterson will add dining facilities for 150 more customers and banquet seating for 275 to 300 people. The original 2,000 square feet of space will be expanded by 4,700 additional square feet, he said.

Before ground was broken for the expansion, Otterson said, four parties had been booked. The additional facilities are slated to open in the near future, he said.

Opening Neptune's was the culmination of a long-time dream, according to Otterson. Although he was not a professional cook, he prepared lunches, snacks and meals for his family since he was a young boy and continued to cook during his adult years.

Otterson learned about seafoods in Maryland where he spent his childhood and some of his adult years. The eastern shore of Maryland is famous for its seafood specialties and Otterson plans to bring Maryland hard-shell crabs to the area in May or June.

The restaurant features fish and chips, swordfish, stuffed flounder and shrimp "prepared all kinds of ways," Otterson said. One of the most popular items on the seafood menu is Orange Roughy which is steamed and prepared with "fine shavings of vegetables - just enough to add flavor but delicate enough not to mask the taste of the Orange Roughy."

The menu also includes steaks, sandwiches, various specials and five varieties of homemade soup.

Seven days a week the restaurant, located across the street from Wayne County Community College, is open from 5 a.m. to 11 p.m.

County commissioner's assistant key to success

By BOB DENYS
ANP Staff Writer

Don't ask Becky Tavarozzi how old she is, she might tell you.

The Westland resident and administrative aide to Wayne County Commissioner Kay Beard speaks with refreshing and candid frankness about her life and her work.

Politics are in her blood, she said. Last weekend, she marched down Michigan Avenue in her regular spot during the 29th annual St. Patrick's Day parade, not far from former governor G. Mennen (Soapy) Williams and even closer to Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara.

As a longstanding member in one of the seven local Irish organizations, Tavarozzi helped establish the traditional Irish parade. "Don't let the name fool you," she joked. "My husband Mike was pure Italian, but he seemed to enjoy the Irish more." When Mike was buried six years ago, ironically, it was on St. Patrick's Day. However, she is also a member of the Italian American Club for almost 20 years now. She has three children, Mary, Lu Anne and Michael and one grandchild, Marlena.

Adopted as an infant by Frank and Evelyn Denny, she spent her early years in the Rosedale Park neighborhood of Detroit. Her father retired from tobacco manufacturer Scotten-Dillon after 50 years.

ASSOCIATED NEWSPAPERS: When did you become interested in politics?

TAVAROZZI: In the summer of 1944, when I worked temporary for Wayne County. One thing led to another, and after 39 years, three months and 17 days, I retired. Three weeks later, I started with Kay Beard. I can't help it. I'm just fascinated with politics.

With the County, I worked in the tract index department of the old county building and Mike worked with the county clerk. There's a lot of history in those old land records. Every property owner from the days of the early land grants is listed.

One time, I remember, we couldn't find any reference to a particular island in the Detroit River. It didn't exist, according to most maps or our records. Evidently, the island was formed during the 1920s by a local company from material dredged in the river.

focus on people

ANP: Which Irish organizations do you belong to?

TAVAROZZI: The group I'm most active with is the Daughters of Erin. I was president once. They date back to the 1800s. I'm an officer in another old organization, the Gaelic League. The parade was wonderful. Everybody is Irish on St. Patrick's Day. Coleman Young even marched one year. I wouldn't miss it. And you don't have to wear green.

The theme for this year's parade is the Irish in Michigan, 150 years of progress. It was always said that you can't unite the Irish. But in Detroit with this parade, with seven different Irish organizations, we did it.

ANP: What are your duties as administrative aide and in what other activities are you involved?

TAVAROZZI: As one of two administrative aides for County Commissioner Kay Beard, I attend all Westland city council meetings as well as make several other appearances she would otherwise be unable to attend.

For nine years, I have volunteered time with the commission to establish an employee assistance program. It's my pet project. We would like county funding for the program which helps with substance abuse, marital or financial problems. The program has been proven to save money and lives. We are however, aware of county budget problems.

I studied real estate law at Wayne State University. I've had my salesman license a couple of times. Mostly I've worked, except for three short maternity leaves.

When I'm not working or marching in parades, I like to golf and exercise. I'm also active with the seniors at the Westland Friendship Center. I just like to be busy.

"One thing led to another and after 39 years, three months and 17 days, I retired. Three weeks later, I started with Kay Beard. I can't help it. I'm just fascinated with politics."

Doctor plans support group

By MARK NICHOLAS
ANP Staff Writer

Dr. Jerry Nosanchuk got a big surprise last week.

Nosanchuk, a Livonia physician who specializes in menopausal problems, hosted a support group meeting last month, and was overwhelmed at the public response to the program. With very little publicity more than 50 women attended the meeting seeking some answers about this uncomfortable, misunderstood and anxiety-ridden time in every woman's life.

Nosanchuk is now attempting to plan a support group for Wayne-Westland women, some of whom phoned his office after the first gathering asking for more help.

One of the callers was Gail Fisher of Westland who said it's time to help inform women about menopause. "Some women think they have some sort of fatal disease when they enter menopause, it's not true." To help women through this tough time, Fisher has tentatively scheduled a meeting at the Westland YMCA, on Wayne Road for 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, April 1. Nosanchuk will be in attendance to answer any questions and make women aware that there are choices available to them, according to Fisher.

According to Nosanchuk, women need to be more informed about menopause. "What I will be doing is providing accurate information, so women have a real way of participating in their own health care from an informed basis." According to Nosanchuk, being properly informed of the choices available can increase life expectancy and greatly improve the quality of life.

For further information on the meeting, contact Gail Fisher at 729-6465.

Money well spent

School priorities in order in Van Buren

In just a little more than two weeks, voters in the Van Buren School District will be asked to cast their ballots to renew two current millages. Approval of the two proposals on April 6 will ensure the continuance of current programs and will not increase taxes for district residents.

The millage requests account for the bulk of the district revenues: 32.35 mills for general school operation and .25 mills for maintenance and repair of existing buildings. Total millage for the district is 41 mills or $41 on each $1,000 of state equalized property values. Obviously, with the bulk of the current millage being placed in the hands of the voters, the decision at the polls is critical to the future of the district. It is inconceivable that the district could operate without the five-year renewal that administrators, teachers and pupils alike are hoping will be approved.

At this time, we could assemble statistics and list facts in support of the millage request. Instead, we prefer to state our firsthand observations of a school district that seems to have an abundance of excellent, innovative instructors and concerned, involved administrators.

During the past three months, for example, our staff photographers and writers have visited (some buildings more than once) the high school, one middle school and five of the six elementary schools. We have, without exception, found students being challenged by innovative approaches to their assignments and teachers who have obviously put forth an extra effort to create a good learning atmosphere in the classroom.

At the first of the year, we visited Awesome Valley, located in a combined fourth and fifth-grade classroom in the Tyler School and observed students learning concepts of economics by setting up and operating their own mini-society. We were impressed to hear the 10- and 11-year-olds talk about the law of supply and demand as easily as their peers might discuss the rules of a board game. Next, a visit to South Middle School proved to us that geology can be taught in a manner that will spark the enthusiasm of students. As the pupils researched the National Park System, they developed skills in writing, research and problem-solving and, at the same time, gained information on the geology of the individual parks. Later we interviewed vocational education students and noted the emphasis being placed on preparing the students in the district to gain marketable skills with which to gain employment after graduation.

First-graders at Edgemont School worked with computers and studied in learning centers while mastering the "three Rs." Their counterparts at Haggerty and Elwell enjoyed similar learning experiences.

At Savage School we expected to record a "fun day" but found, to our surprise and pleasure that the event we went to cover was a learning experience coordinated by the reading committee of the school. A series of events at Savage School have been implemented to improve the Michigan Education Association Program test scores when the pupils again participate in the statewide assessments.

We do not need statistics, lists and fact sheets to recommend to the voters in the Van Buren School District to vote for the renewal of the school millages. We feel that we have recorded proof in our recent editions that Van Buren teachers and administrators are working in a team effort to provide a quality education for their students. We have been there, observed the programs and left with confidence and assurance that a good, quality education is being provided.

Can it be improved? Of course. No district in the state should be satisfied with its current status. All should be striving for better basic education, improvement and expansion of vocational and technical programs and a decrease in the drop-out rate. The Van Buren School District, like the other districts, needs to work on continued improvements to keep pace with the needs of students. We recommend that you place your faith in the district by registering an affirmative vote for the continuation of the millage requests.

And, we also recommend that you as parents and taxpayers voice your support for continued improvements and innovations in the district schools. Keep up the good work, Van Buren schools. We'll be keeping our eyes on you.

A trip to bountiful

Two weeks ago tomorrow, a group of designated representatives from newspapers across the country attended a briefing in Washington D.C. The city on the Potomac was ripe with current news of great significance for all of us, particularly since President Ronald Reagan had addressed the country the night before on national television, commenting on the Tower Report.

It was an interesting time to be in the capitol of our nation, to sense the mood of the country following Reagan's address.

Since last fall, the nation had waited not-so-patiently to hear from our president exactly how such a debacle as the Iranian arms deal ever occurred, and what he thought of the Tower Committee investigation.

So here I was, one of a room full of newspaper "folk" assembled in the Old Executive Building just off Pennsylvania Avenue. If you ever have an occasion to talk to someone on the "White House staff," they are probably located in this majestic old office building where the press briefing took place.

The builder, I am told, labored long and hard to complete his masterpiece, only to run out of money before completion. Unlike current times, the government refused to authorize additional funds, and the builder died without ever seeing his "love" completed.

Security was tight from the time we entered the building until the moment we left. Guards far more thorough than those at most airports watched intently as we passed through the metal detectors, had all camera cases searched and moved upstairs to the briefing auditorium.

We were first addressed by a member of the staff who told us what to expect. It was suggested that we not make any sudden moves or we might be set upon by the Secret Service faster than, well, probably faster than we could say 'Iran-a-scam,' my words, not hers.

After a few remarks from an aide, the network news crews entered the room. I was in the last row and so they came breezing past the back of my pointed little head. There were enough of them to fill the entire back of the fairly small room that curved around and tapered down to the stage.

As the president entered, the cameras began to whirl and click, click, click. I was busy snapping the shutters of the two cameras that I had brought.

I had taken my recorder along and was somewhat oblivious to what the President was saying. I could listen to the tape later I thought, but this was my one chance to take photos of the president.

As luck would have it, I had turned the recorder on, then off during a pause before Reagan entered the room. I tumbled to my error toward the end of his talk, and switched the little bugger on. Better late than not at all.

In my exuberance, I half stood up to snap a shot with my telephoto lens so as not to have my photo obstructed by the back of heads. I figured I could go unnoticed, since I was in the last row. The journalist who had the misfortune to sit next to me during all this suggested to me later that I had been a strong candidate for a flying tackle by the palace guard.

I do recall a few of the president's specific remarks to us. One was that what was most interesting about our visit was not that it was the day after his address, but rather that it was the day before tomorrow.

I still am not exactly sure what that implied. Later, when I was watching highlights of his remarks on the evening news, I began to wonder if that meant that he was going to send the Ayatollah a candy gram or letter bomb the next day.

We were given a booklet with a letter and genuine four-color p-h-o-t-o-g-r-a-p-h of our

To The Editor:

Tom Mooradian's column (other side of the meridian, Feb. 25) was right on target.

Mooradian criticized moves by the Inkster city government to oust Fire Chief Lyle Evon and he pointed out how really tough it is to put a good man down. Mooradian cited several examples of public employees who apparently got the last laugh (and a lot of money) after courts decided that they were illegally fired.

One case, still in progress, that Mooradian failed to mention is that of former Inkster Building Inspector Harry DuChesne. More than a year ago the chief federal judge in Detroit decided in DuChesne's favor, that he had been illegally terminated in 1983.

In my opinion, the "powers that be" in the City of Inkster have (perhaps because of personal grudges) thrown a great deal of good money after bad in continuing to fight this case at great expense to the taxpayers.

Legal fees to date must exceed $120,000. Chief Federal Judge Phillip Pratt has ordered that DuChesne draw a full salary of perhaps $35,000 times 3 1/2 years. To date: $122,500. (Although he draws the salary and some extremely expensive medical benefits, the city will not permit DuChesne to show up for work.)

DuChesne was fired twice by former city manager W. Williams, but the city couldn't make it stick. March 3rd was set by the court as the starting date for a new hearing at which the city hopes to see DuChesne fired at last by a federally appointed hearing officer. (Although DuChesne costs the taxpayers $35,000 per year in just salary, the city powers have stalled for about a year trying to avoid this hearing.)

Although DuChesne has the right to a closed hearing, I understand from him that he has requested, for the third time, to have his hearing public, as is his right. Although the city must acquiesce, unnamed city powers appear to me to be doing their very best to keep the hearing secret. Reportedly, even DuChesne and his attorneys are not given the hearing location (which must be arranged by the city) until just hours before the scheduled start of the hearing.

Although there are at least three very suitable locations in the city where the public hearing can be held, I have it from knowledgeable sources that the hearing will not be held in Inkster but in faraway Southfield. Certainly not in secret, but it might as well be . . . how many Inkster residents plan to drive out there to hear four-year-old dirt uncovered?

And the cost? Well, four or five city employees for all four days of the hearing – assuming four days – plus 15 or 20 witnesses who will have to sit around way out there for at least a day each plus their transportation cost. Makes you wonder how much longer we should have to endure our current city government, doesn't it?

I have the distinction of being one of a very small number of persons who have actually taken the time to attend several hearing sessions both in Inkster and in Federal court and to have read most of the case file. In my opinion, in the first two weeks after DuChesne's improper termination, the case could have been settled at no cost to the Inkster taxpayers or for less than $5,000.

At this point, depending on the outcome of the current hearing, the case will in my opinion cost the taxpayers as much as 1.4 million dollars! That's $400,000 in fees, ongoing salary, and other expenses plus a cool million in total damages.

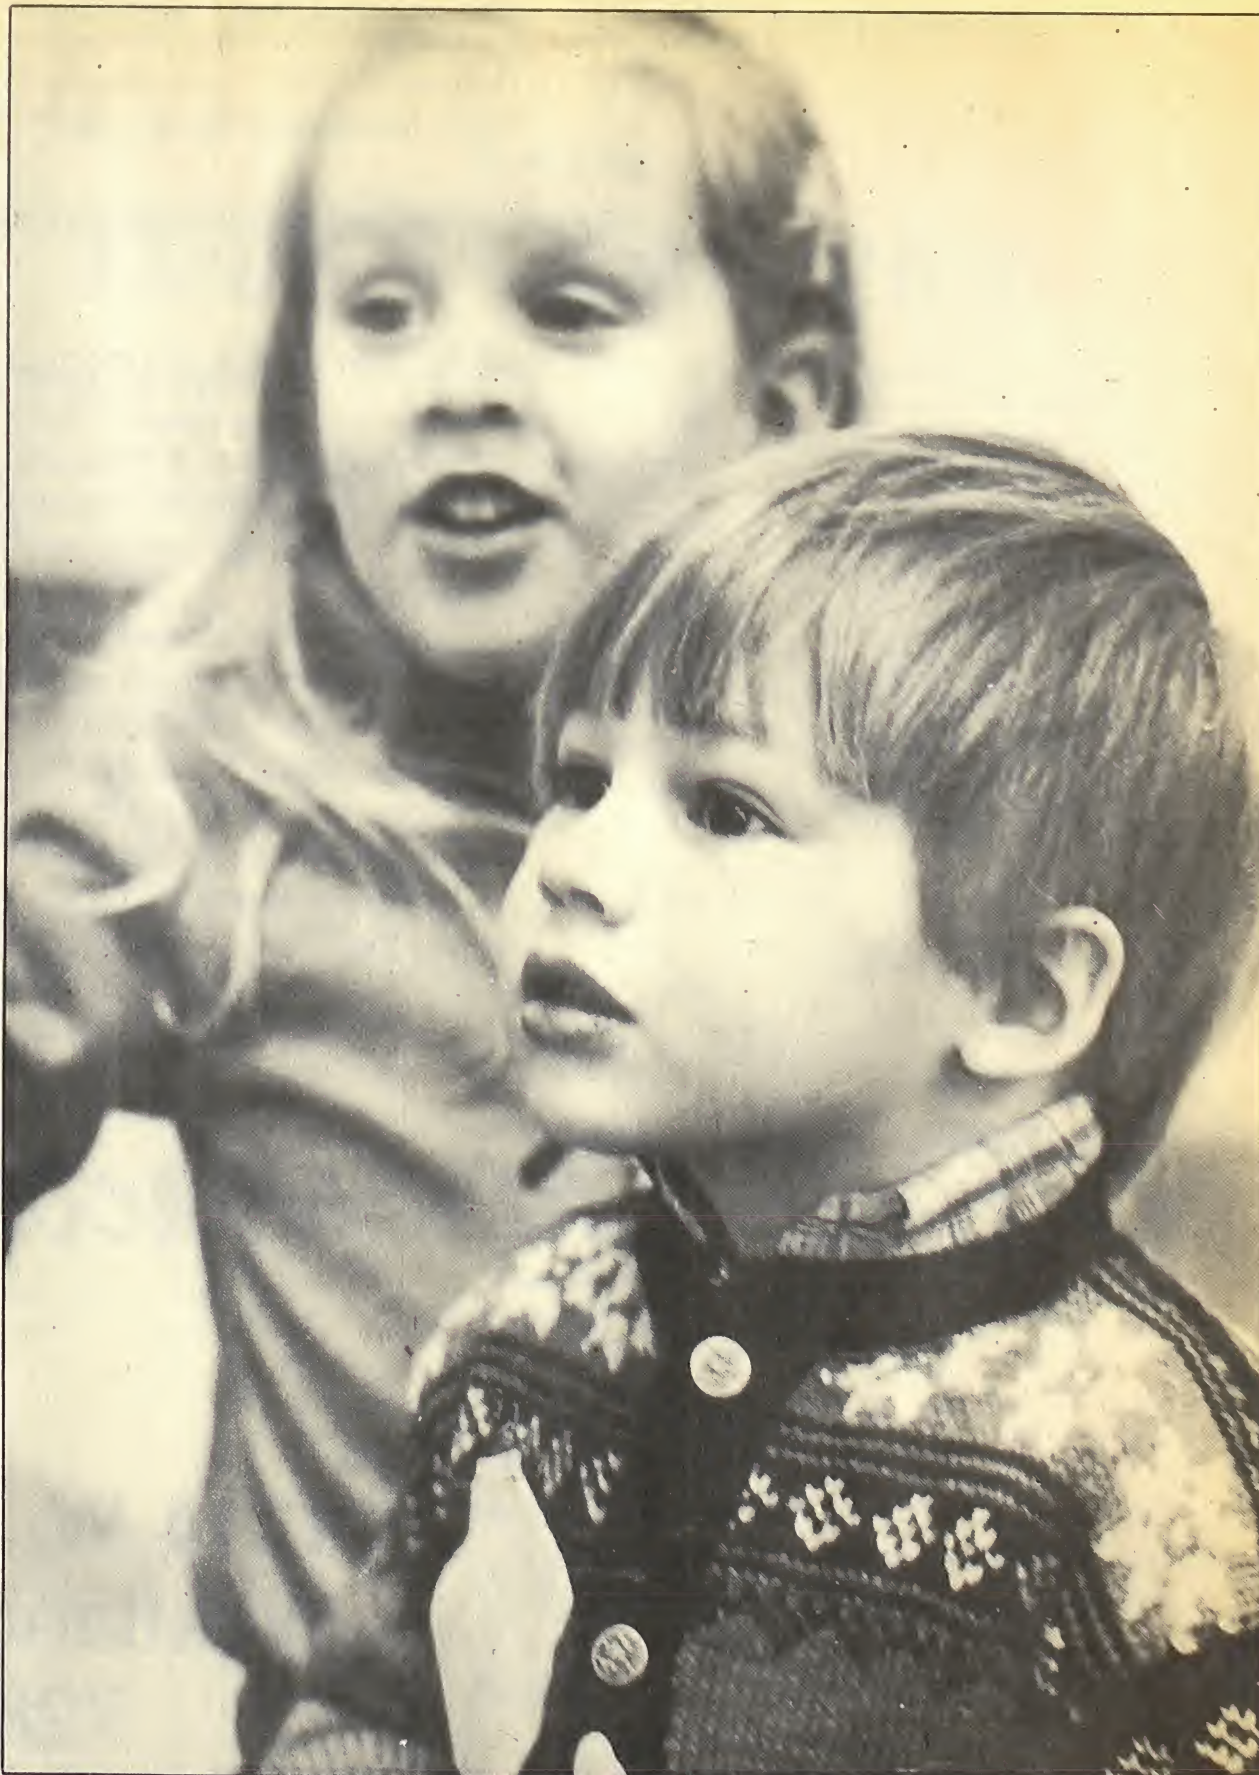

Try as hard as they will to keep this a secret, unless the insurance company takes an awfully big bite, City Hall will have a tough time coming up with 1.4 million from a budget of 8.5 million.

I suppose that City Hall would say that they want to play down the DuChesne case in order not to demoralize other city employees. The question remains: "How many others are in line with Lyle Evon just behind DuChesne?"

When one considers the multi-million construction projects and super malls being developed and constructed around the state and the nation, the proposed "Town Square" shopping center slated to begin this May in Inkster may easily be brushed aside as insignificant.

But the city is standing proud with David H. Eisenberg, president of the Southfield-based Capital Equities, Inc., who is planning to see "Town Square" become a reality on the 13.5 acres of land located on the corner of Michigan Avenue and Inkster Road.

That parcel became a wasteland more than 30 years ago when the plows of the federal government swept the aging homes away with the promises of better things to come.

As we all know now, those better things never materialized.

Developers proposed and promised Inkster city officials that that prime land was perfect for almost everything.

But nothing went up.

Eisenberg told a handful of Inkster citizens and City Council Monday night "that the development is approximately 80 percent leased at this time and groundbreaking should take place around the first of May, with the center scheduled to open around Thanksgiving."

It was good news, indeed, for Inkster and resident who have been forced to shop outside their city for most of their needs.

The new shopping center will have as major tenants a supermarket, a drug store and auto parts store and will include ladies' and men's apparel and a beauty supply shoppe.

Eisenberg also agreed to use the environment, the trees to complement the stucco structures that will make up the center. He promises that the stores will be esthetically appealing and the center will also feature approximately 10,000 square feet at the corner of

tom mooradian

Michigan Avenue and Inkster Road for an area reserved for civic attention...it will include benches and a sculpture.

Inkster has waited more than three decades for a centrally located shopping center that hopefully would create a magnet for other retail and commerce and people to take a second look at the city.

The long wait is over. We believe it was worth it.

very own Ronnie to take home. There were no questions permitted and the big guy left as swiftly as he had entered.

New Chief of Staff Howard Baker had unobtrusively entered with the president. He leaned against the wall in the shadows and watched every move. He listened intently to every word and searched for any audience reaction, and then along with the president and the entry camera crew, Baker vanished in an instant. Baker made me think of a stage manager, who wants the performance to come off "just right." We heard from a few other members of the White House cast of characters, including a general who is "the guy" doing all the paperwork now, which the president referred to in his nationally televised comments on Iran. The general said that he had been in West Germany until just recently, with his 36,000 troops and there he knew his enemy, their combat capability, their location, and he and his men were poised and ready for any eventuality. "Now," he said, "I'm in Washington D. C., I don't know who the enemy is or where they are and I wish I had my troops with me." Perhaps we can sleep safe tonight in the knowledge that he doesn't have his troops with him.

We were allowed to ask the assistant press secretary questions, . . . and so I did. I stood and as politely as I could I inquired as to the intentions of the Reagan administration regarding the Small Business Administration.

The memory of Reagan failing to appear at the White House conference in Washington last August was not far from my conscious thought. His reply echoed the refrain that had run throughout the comments of the other speakers. He suggested that the top priority of the administration was to balance the budget. He dogmatically stated that this would help all Americans, whereas the SBA helped only a few. Furthermore, he concluded, he was on a roll now, there were other ways to help American small business, the job creators in this country.

As he was congratulating himself for having his facts in order, he half turned to scan the audience for other questions, and, once again friends, I was polite. I asked, "And what might some of those be?" I was not happy with his pat political answer. Well, the balloon broke. I'm not quite sure what he said after that and apparently no one else was either, judging from several of the unsolicited comments directed at me as we left the room. Let's just say that the consensus was that the present administration holds no favor for small business. As best I could detect, those folks know small business types create the jobs that employ the workers of tomorrow, but to steal a line from Kennedy, "an incoming tide raises all boats."

So for any of you folks out there who own or operate small businesses, are thinking of starting one, or are employed by one, the president's policy to help the small business goes like this, . . . "Hang in there guys."

All in all, the trip to D.C. was an "educational experience."

See you next week.

A silent killer

Alcoholism takes lives in mysterious style

By JOAN MARY DYER
Belleville City Editor

Alcohol abuse is a problem of such enormity, according to one psychotherapist, that alcohol is the contributing factor in up to 75 percent of his cases.

For some individuals who have been diagnosed as alcoholics, drinking is the presenting problem and must be treated before any other issues are addressed. For others, defined as problem drinkers, alcohol may either be an underlying cause of their work-related or marital problems or it could be a reaction to the problem itself.

According to Roger Dallwig, M.A., director of Her Place/His Place Counseling Center, a therapist may see a client for several sessions before the alcohol issues surface. Sometimes, he said, the alcohol problem stems from the client's early years in an alcoholic family. Many adult children of alcoholics carry problems from their childhood days into their adult lives and later enter counseling to resolve those issues, he said. Also, the recovering alcoholic - while not dealing with a current drinking problem - may have long-term effects from his or her past drinking experiences for which he may seek counseling.

Although there are many definitions of alcoholism, most agree that it involves a loss of control over the individual's drinking behavior. He or she cannot control when or where the drinking will occur and once the drinking has begun, the individual cannot stop at will, the therapist said.

"If you drink and it is causing you problems in any area of your life," the therapist said, "it is a good indication that you should take a serious look at your drinking habits."

An early warning signal of alcohol abuse, most therapists agree, is the tendency of the drinker to make promises to quit but to break them and to drink more and more in an attempt to achieve the same effect. In the middle stage of alcohol abuse, the alcoholic attempts to conceal his or her drinking, drinking becomes a daily necessity and it becomes harder for the drinker to feel good regardless of the amount of alcohol consumed. In the advanced stage of alcoholism, drinking becomes the primary focus in the life of the alcoholic - coming before job or family.

For those who are diagnosed as alcoholics, abstinence is the only answer, and may come as a "bitter pill" to those who enjoy drinking and do not want to give it up. Numerous attempts to "teach" moderation to alcoholics has resulted in only short-term success in controlling the drinking behavior, the therapist said. For those who are problem drinkers, it is possible to limit and reduce the alcohol intake to a moderate level.

Adding to the problems of alcohol abuse, Dallwig said, is not only the acceptance, but encouragement of drinking by society. The pressure to drink may even be more pronounced in this area, he said, where heavy drinking is considered to be an appropriate behavior for men and an acceptable behavior for women.

Dallwig noted a television commercial which shows a new man on the job virtually ignored by his co-workers until he meets them at the bar after work and is accepted "as one of the boys." He called the commercial "an insidious one" which erroneously communicates to young people that the only way to attain camaraderie is through the use of alcohol.

The therapist noted that the term "alcoholic" is erroneously equated with a Skid Row derelict. In reality, only about three percent of the individuals who have lost control of their drinking could be classified as derelicts. Another fallacy is that women do not become alcoholics. In some areas, the number of alcoholic men and women are almost evenly divided, but on the average one in five alcoholics are women, according to studies.

Another common fallacy is that to be an alcoholic, an individual must drink every day. Some alcoholics, known as binge drinkers, are periodic drinkers but when they consume alcohol, like other alcoholics, they lose control and are unable to limit their drinking. Another common misconception is that beer drinkers cannot become alcoholics. Beer, however, contains alcohol just as whiskey or wines does and produces the same effects.

Support group offers some hope by sharing experiences

By MARK NICHOLAS
ANP Staff Writer

Alcoholism is a disease that must be taken seriously. It is a chronic affliction which strikes thousands of Americans. But there is help available, although many do not realize the number of victims of the disease, or the amount of help available to them.

Persons seeking help for themselves or someone else can call Alcoholics Anonymous of Greater Detroit to find out about meetings and support groups. According to a volunteer there, any request for help by phone is offered directions to find tangible aid. "People can call here (541-6565) and we will give them the meetings that are closest to their home." According to the volunteer, once at the meeting, additional information can be obtained. "Once they get to the meeting, they can get a directory which lists all the meetings in the area, with the day and time."

There is another support group for auto workers, the Ford Motor Company Employee Assistance Program. According to Richard Boone, employee assistance representative for the Ford Wayne Assembly Plant, troubled workers are referred to the proper source of care. "I'm a connector for people with all types of problems, a referral agent. I set up appointments with the proper people that are trained to assess and diagnose, and then refer to the proper treatment," he said.

Problem drinkers are not just thrown into A.A., according to Boone, there are other things to look for. "Just because a person has a problem drinking, doesn't mean they have alcoholism. There could be a family problem making them turn to the bottle, we look at all the possibilities, we don't just refer them to A.A."

Self-help groups may also be used in the treatment, according to Boone. "We do refer patients to self-help groups such as Brighton Hospital or Maple Grove." Boone said self-help groups become a big part of the treatment, after the initial care. "After the initial care, the person uses self-help groups, they (self-help groups) become a big part of the treatment," he said.

According to Boone, the Employee Assistance Program benefits more than just auto workers. "I do see immediate family members when I can. Whenever I do something for someone that lives in a community, the entire community benefits, not just the one person," he said. The effort to stem alcoholism is not just on the part of Ford Motor Co.,

Boone said. "It's a joint effort by Ford, the UAW, the city and the court system. Everyone is concerned about the outcome of the effects of drug and alcohol abuse."

The UAW does allow the general public to use one of its union halls, along with any auto workers, in the Wayne-Westland area, according to Boone. "Every Tuesday at 4:30 p.m. at local 900 union hall (38110 Michigan Avenue) there is an A.A. meeting that is open to the general public." Boone said Ford Motor does not pay for these meetings. "We donate the use of the hall, they support there own way, they are free standing."

There are many channels or support meetings in the area, some of these include:

• In Belleville - Monday Night at 8 p.m. 11575 Belleville Road, at I-94.

• In Romulus - Wednesday at 7 p.m., The Landing Strip, Salvation Army Center, 33750 Goddard Road, across from Metro Airport.

• In Dearborn - Wednesday at 8:30 p.m., Littlefield Blvd. Church, 7560 Littlefield Blvd.

For additional information on meetings or any other questions, call Alcoholics Anonymous at 541-6565, or the A.A. Literature Room at 541-7490.

Officer Liebert

Police see alcohol as threat to others

Officer Michael Liebert of Romulus won't argue that a surprisingly high number of crimes are committed while people are under the influence of alcohol. National statistics support his first hand observations.

"Sixty percent would be a low figure for crimes influenced by alcohol," he said. "In a domestic situation, one of the most dangerous for a police officer, that percentage is closer to 90 percent. Individuals are often abusive to their wives and children. They're highly volatile, and it's our duty to walk in and reason with them. Which isn't easy after someone's been drinking for eight hours."

Liebert said the common types of crimes committed under the influence of alcohol are traffic, domestic or juvenile problems. He points out, however, that most drunk drivers are between the ages of 25-50.

"I believe younger people are more aware of the problems with driving under the influence of alcohol. I arrest more people in the older generations. Tomorrow, I'll present a case in court against a 74 year-old man," he added.

Romulus Police Chief Charles Wilmoth reiterates some national and local facts, "Fifty percent of all fatal traffic accidents involved at least one drunk driver. In Romulus, last year, it was five of the eight traffic fatalities. During February, our department arrested 45 people for drunk driving. In 1986, there were a total of 379 arrests. The problem has not subsided."

"I believe younger people are more aware of the problems with driving under the influence of alcohol."

To demonstrate that time nor age play a significant role in determining drunk drivers, Liebert recalled this recent incident, "On Sunday at 7:30 p.m. Romulus police arrested a 20-year-old woman after she lost control of her car and hit a vehicle in oncoming traffic. Fortunately, injuries were minor. But when we brought her into the station, she screamed and kicked for almost two hours."

While driving drunk is certainly the most serious, according to Liebert, it is not by far the most common as domestic, juvenile and general disorderly conduct are also prevalent.

"Alcohol is involved in a wide range of activities. People think drinking gives them confidence to do what you want to do when you want to do it. But it's a false confidence," said Liebert.

Liebert recalls more personal statistics about drunks. "Every night 4-5 people are locked up because they're intoxicated. We can't keep up with drunk drivers. For every one we bring in, we pass 3 to 4 on the way back to the station. It doesn't matter what time of day. There are as many drunks on the road in the afternoon as when the bars close. They are harder to detect," he explained.

Summer is approaching and with it come hundreds of drunken young people who party in groups of up to 100 "all night long." "It's a big problem," he said.

"We have young kids, 13-17 stealing cars who have been drinking. This summer, police will take several precautionary measures: enforce the young adult curfew and charge parents with violating the "parenting responsibility" ordinance," he said.

"Alcohol plays into all criminal activity, the whole spectrum. There are so many drunk drivers, it's better to stay off the road," he said.

In the future, Wilmoth hopes to send his officers to a new program called, "Techniques of Alcohol Management," which deals specifically with businesses who sell and serve alcohol.

"There are no short term solutions. We're just touching the tip of the iceberg," added Wilmoth.

In stitches

Members of the Senior Adult Program of the Wayne-Westland Community Schools have been keeping one another in stitches during the past few months as they participated in a quilting project. The cover of the quilt was appliqued by Veronica Norris many years ago before her death. Norris' sister, Rose Gates, donated the top to the seniors. Gates had also wanted to donate the cost of materials and labor to finish the quilt to the seniors, but she died before doing so. The cloth work of art was completed by the ladies of the St. John Episcopal Church of Westland. The quilt is now on display in the Dyer Senior Center on Marquette and has been dedicated to the memory of Norris and Gates. ANP photo by Dave Mytych/special photographer

Slice up the savings

Use chicken to tempt the tastebuds, but also to tighten the pocketbook

By CHEF LARRY JANES
ANP Special Writer

cooking

Just so happened that last month's paycheck was late in arriving, and the Janes clan found themselves "cutting corners" here and there and doing some prudent shopping. Hadn't made chicken lately (we try to limit our intake of processed poultry), and when I visited my local grocery, I couldn't believe the prices. Now, I know the prices hadn't just gone up over night.

Usually, when I purchase meat, fish and poultry, I seldom look at the price per pound/kilo. I just look at the total price I'll be paying at the checkout. Wow! Was I surprised! Prices varied from around 59 cents per pound for inexpensive cuts like wings all the way up to $1.89 per pound for breasts. Boneless breasts were a whopping $3.99 per pound!

I remember watching a television celebrity by the name of Merle Ellis (the butcher) cut up whole chickens in the time it took me to type this sentence. The man was fast. Heck, if he could do it, so could I. So when the old paycheck finally arrived (three days later), I purchased four whole fryer chickens and proceeded to teach myself how to cut them up like a professional. Grant you, I'm not as fast as the butcher, but for the dollars saved, it will do nicely.

You know, food trends come and food trends go, but no matter what the latest fad or fancy, no one ever seems to tire of chicken. A cut up bird is the essence of versatility. A whole chicken can be presented roasted or barbecued. A cut up bird can be fried, baked, poached, stewed, fricasseed, paprikashed, souped, broiled, microwaved and just about any other way you can possibly think of.

Doing the cutting yourself ensures the freshest bird money can buy but best of all is the price. All that's required is a sharp knife. Period. It probably would be of added assistance if you knew the anatomy of chicken, but if you can guess where the wings, legs and back are, you can pretty much "wing" (get the pun?) the rest of the bird.

When beginning to cut up a bird, you will find through experience that chilled birds are easiest to cut up. Remove the giblets from the cavity and pull out the fat from both ends (neck and tail). Start at the wing and pull a wing out from the body and bend it back and forth until you can feel the joint closest to the body. Cut through the joint. Repeat with the second wing. Look at it this way . . . if you screw up now, at least you won't starve!

Now, place the chicken on its back. The back is the flattest side, very bony, with little meat. Pull one whole leg (drumstick and thigh) out from the body. With the knife slanted toward the body, cut down through the skin the body and the entire leg. Bend the whole leg back and forth until the hip joint pops out. Cut through the joint to free the thigh and leg. Ditto for the other leg. Now, set your knife down and with your finger feel where the drumstick and the thigh are joined. I'm doing this as I type so excuse the mess on the page. Cut through this joint and separate the thigh and leg. Repeat with the other leg.

Now, fix yourself a reward. I just opened a bag of chocolate chips - just remember to wash your hands good before you lick your fingers!

Okay, back to work. Now stand what's left of the bird on end. Any end will do. God knows that by now, you won't be able to tell the front from the back. Using a big sharp knife, cut down the rib cage, separating the meatiest breast meat from the boniest rib and back area. A cleaver works best if you can remember to keep your other hand out of the area where you are chopping. The back and partial rib cages are best kept with the wingtips and giblets for soup making or gravy making. Of course, if you haven't mastered soup or gravy, just pop them into the garbage and let the neighborhood cats have a field day when you set out your garbage.

Place the large breast skin-side down and again, using a sharp knife, split in half by running the knife down the soft white backbone. It starts easy but is a real bugger when it comes to the actual splitting.

There you have it. One boned chicken. If you didn't screw up, you should have approximately nine pieces of chicken, enough to make into a great casserole for four, all for under $4. (This is what a whole fryer cost me at the grocery.)

If you really want to get brave and try deboning the legs and breasts, drop me a self-addressed, stamped envelope in care of this newspaper for easy to follow directions. Bon Appetite!

ORIENTAL CHICKEN CASSEROLE

- ¾ cup mayonnaise
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice
- 1 teaspoon soy sauce
- 2 tablespoons butter/margarine
- 1 large onion, diced
- 1 cup sliced celery
- 1 cup mushrooms, sliced
- 3 cups diced cooked chicken
- ½ cup water chestnuts
- ½ cup slivered almonds
- 1-3 oz. can french fried onion rings

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Combine first three ingredients in a small bowl. Melt butter in a large skillet over medium heat and add onion, celery and mushrooms and saute until tender. Blend in chicken, water chestnuts and almonds. Stir in mayonnaise mixture. Turn into a greased baking dish and sprinkle with onion rings. Bake 30 minutes.

CHICKEN IN CHAMPAGNE

- 2 roaster chickens, cut up
- ¼ cup melted butter/margarine
- ¼ cup flour
- 2 cups milk
- 2 onions, sliced thin
- dash nutmeg
- ½ cup finely chopped mushrooms
- 1 teaspoon minced garlic
- 1 cup champagne (flat is okay)

Place chicken pieces in a roaster pan and bake at 350 degrees, uncovered for 40 minutes. Set aside. Meanwhile, cook butter and flour over low heat until well-blended. Scald milk with onion and strain in flour mixture. Cook until thick and smooth. Add nutmeg and garlic. Set aside. Remove chicken from the pan and skim off fat. Add champagne to pan liquid and bring to a boil, stirring to dissolve particles in the bottom of the pan. Pour pan juices into the sauce and mix well. Bring to a boil, strain. Place chicken on a platter and pour sauce over top. Garnish with parsley.

LOW CALORIE CHICKEN A L'ORANGE

- 1 chicken, cut up
- 3 tablespoons orange juice concentrate
- ½ cup orange juice
- grated rind of 1 orange

Place chicken in cooking bag or small roaster. Combine concentrate, juice and rind, mix well and pour over chicken. Bake at 350 degrees for 1 hour. Chicken can be broiled and the juice/concentrate mixture can be used as a baste.

CHICKEN BULGOGI

- 3 pounds chicken, cut up
- 5 green onions, chopped
- 4 cloves garlic, mashed
- ½ cup soy sauce
- ½ cup sugar
- ¼ cup sesame oil
- ¼ cup dry sherry
- 1 teaspoon ginger
- ½ teaspoon fresh ground pepper

With a sharp knife, score each piece of chicken with an X. Combine remaining ingredients, add chicken and coat thoroughly. Marinate chicken overnight in the refrigerator. Grill over hot coals or broil for 12 minutes, turning once. Baste with marinade as necessary.

Pothole contest seeks 'best of worst'

By JOAN MARY DYER
Belleville City Editor

Chuckholes are "public enemy number one" for vehicles in the spring, according to Chuck Ray of Automotive Tire & Service.

Running over - and into - potholes knocks front ends out of alignment, ruins tires and wheels and can even damage the steering parts of cars, Ray said. The "real dillies" can even damage the car body itself, he said.

Most of the damage done by the chuckholes - the scourge of spring drivers - is either putting the vehicles out of alignment or damaging tires, Ray said. However, when spring rains fill up the holes with water and conceal their depth, unsuspecting motorists can find themselves literally "in deep trouble" which often results in costly damage.

Entries for these "best of the worst" potholes in the area are being sought for the Chuckhole Derby contest sponsored by Associated Newspaers.

Although the newspaper cannot alleviate the annual road problems which emerge each spring, the three top winners in the contest will be awarded prizes to ease their "pothole phobia."

Nominations for the worst area chuckholes can be sent by letter or post card to Chuckhole Derby, Associated Newspapers, P.O. Box 578, Wayne, Mich. 48184, or the Belleville Enterprise, 116 Fourth St., Belleville, Mich. 48111. The chuckhole must be on a paved road or street in Wayne, Westland, Belleville, Romulus, Inkster or Canton, Sumpter and Van Buren townships. Prizes will be awarded to the first individual to nominate each of the three worst chuckholes in the area.

Commute to UM-Dearborn and save thousands of dollars

A quality education doesn't have to be expensive

At nationally prominent private institutions, the cost of earning a four-year degree, including room and board, can exceed $12,000 a year.

At comparable public residential campuses in Michigan, the cost for one year of college averages $6,000.

The University of Michigan-Dearborn's total costs, including tuition, fees, transportation, and books, are $3,500 a year.

Students can commute to UM-D, take advantage of high academic standards, and still participate in the numerous cultural, intellectual, athletic, and recreational opportunities on campus, in the metropolitan area, and at U-M Ann Arbor.

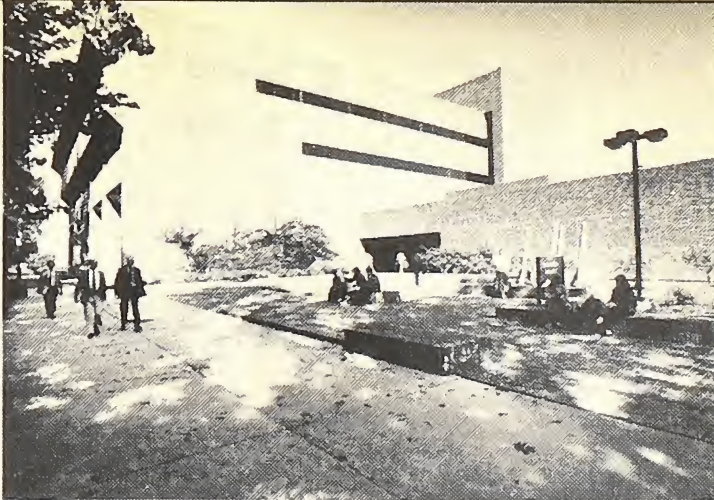

Money saved by living at home can provide the resources to pay for these enriching opportunities. These savings can also make the next step to graduate or professional study a lot easier.

To learn more about UM-D, call for a prospectus and an appointment for a confidential admissions evaluation.

Help is in the mind

Hypnotist attributes problems to past lives

By RAY DAY
-ANP Managing Editor

Most people call smoking, over eating and drinking bad human habits, and they consider body aches normal human occurrences.

But Dr. Lois Munkachy of Belleville believes all of these events are the result of a problem created in one of our former lives, problems which can be easily solved by means of hypnosis.

A retired Romulus school teacher of 32 years, Munkachy's interest in the "unknown" began about 35 years ago while studying creativity and the human subconscious. Her curiosity with the subject resulted in her writing a doctoral dissertation on hypnosis in relation to past life experiences and, six years ago, caused her to open her own self-help clinic in Belleville.

"While studying creativity, I became aware of the subconscious and how it related to creativity. One thing I noted was the major breakthroughs came in a flash for people like Einstein and Edison. That fascinated me," Munkachy said. "That tied into E.S.P., and got me started with the Rosierucians."

A fraternal and nonreligious organization, the Rosierucians study the human subconscious and believe in self help through past life regressions. Munkachy uses those beliefs to cure patients of smoking and weight disorders, in addition to eliminating human pain and suffering.

To do this, Munkachy depends on hypnosis. Clients are asked to stare at the ceiling in Munkachy's office and answer questions she asks of them. Once inside of the subconscious, Munkachy contends that she can give the person orders which will assist him in his effort to stop smoking or lose weight. But, more importantly, she said, this encounter with the subconscious can make the patient regress to childhood years and eventually into past lives.

"I had an asthma patient in here, and I asked him to go back and find whatever it was that caused the asthma. He found out that he was trapped in a fire in a previous lifetime and carried that experience over to this lifetime. Once he was able to recognize that fact, the asthma was gone," Munkachy said.

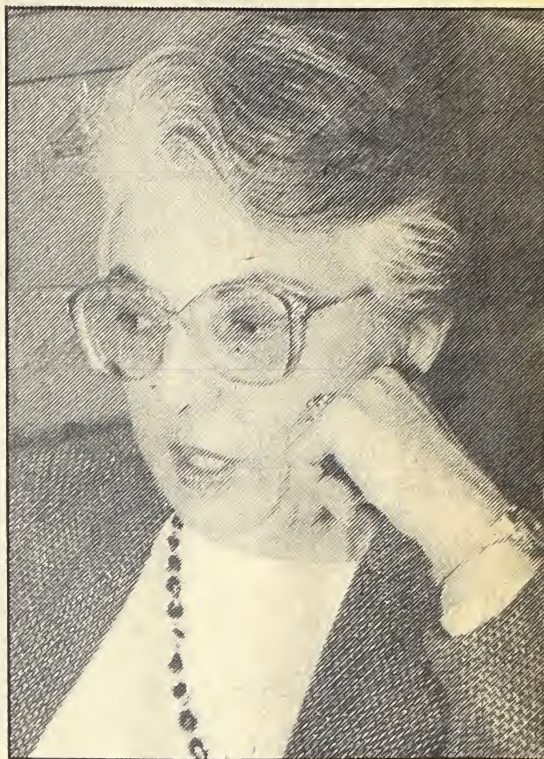

Munkachy herself experienced a past life regression. According to the local doctor of philosophy, her experience with times-gone-by happened one day while meditating. She explained that this meditation—one form of hypnosis—transferred her back into the mid-1600s, to the days of horse and buggy, long dresses and corsets. That experience lasted for about three minutes, she said, but was long enough to convince her that past life regression was real.

Today, Munkachy uses this form of hypnosis and return to former lives to prevent her from getting colds and end any bodily pain. She also uses her skills to help train others in the field through a series of workshops and courses offered throughout the area.

But even as firmly as she believes in her field, Munkachy admits that she must continually try to convince the ever-present skeptic. It's not an easy job, she said, but most clients who enter her office as skeptics, leave as believers in the end, she said.

"I guess the most important thing is to realize or accept is the idea that you live more than once," Munkachy said. "We have all been reincarnated."

"Hypnosis isn't mystical—you go into hypnosis every night when you go to sleep and every morning when you wake up. And, the possibilities with hypnosis are just endless."

The luck of the draw and victories by Romulus and Wayne in the first round of the playoffs helped to set the stage for a rematch between the two area schools for the Class A district basketball championship. A year ago, Romulus, with the priceless help of prep All-American Terry Mills managed to pull out a triple overtime victory over Coach Chuck Henry's club and went on to win its first Class A state title. The rematch Saturday night at Wayne was equally exciting as the state champ needed a rally to overcome the never-say-die Zebras. In the action above, from left, Romulus's Lutheran Shannon is bottled up Fred Horne while two other Wayne defenders are looking to swipe the ball. High-scoring Mark Robinson (23) finds the coast clear (above) as three Eagles are caught looking. Robinson brought the curtains down on his prep career with 18 points and Wayne and Romulus cagers including Juan Street (44) of Romulus and Wayne's Mark Claiborne (32) are looking for the ball that bounced off the rim. Romulus advances to the state regional playoffs at Eastern Michigan University where they will play a tough Ann Arbor Pioneer quintet 8:30 tonight. The championship at EMU is scheduled for Friday. ... And still champ

Romulus rallies past Wayne to retain district cage title

Deja vu. It seems we've been there before... And one year after All-American prep cager Terry Mills led Romulus to a thrilling three overtime victory over Wayne Memorial in the Class A district playoffs, the two protagonists - san Mills - met again. They definitely had been there before. With about the same results.

With the district title and a regional berth at stake, Romulus and Wayne clashed again, and the game was close right down to the final buzzer.

With Mills, presently in his freshman year at the University of Michigan on the sidelines, Romulus managed to pull out a close 61-55 victory over Coach Chuck Henry's club. Mills had to enjoy that dramatic ending. He almost single-handedly accomplished that feat a year ago.

This year again it was an uphill climb.

Wayne had the champs on the ropes but just couldn't deliver the knockout punch. The hosts led most of the first half until the 1:24 mark of the second period when Romulus center-forward Juan Street sank a basket and then came back for a pair of free throws to tie the score at 31-all. Then teammate Billy Johnson chipped in a short jumper to make it 33-31 and when Brent Bonam

"These kids have worked hard and we're happy that they now have something to show for it. It was a tough game and we're really fortunate that it turned out the way it did..."

connected on a pair of free throws, the defending state champs had finished their uphill climb and retreated to the locker room with a 35-31 lead for the half.

Romulus Coach Dan Henry (no relation to Wayne's Chuck Henry) was elated over the victory. "These kids have worked hard and we're happy that they now have something to show for it. It was a tough game and we're really fortunate that it turned out the way it did, and now we are looking forward to the regional tournament."

Romulus will play Ann Arbor Pioneer at Eastern Michigan University in the second game of a twin bill that will begin at 6:30 tonight. In that opening game Plymouth Salem clashes with Monroe; at 8:30 p.m. Romulus takes on Pioneer. The championship will be decided at 8:30 p.m. Friday. The regional champ will advance to the quarterfinals.

Back to live action:

Wayne took the initiative and after Mark Robinson and Street exchanged initial baskets, the Zebras went ahead as Mark Claiborne drilled in his first basket and followed up with a pair of free throws after being fouled by Bonam. Claiborne gave the Zebras another basket and consecutive two-pointers from Fred Horne and Wayne Jackson built up the lead to 10-4, then when Robinson stole an in-bound pass and turned it into a three-point play, Wayne enjoyed a 13-6 lead, which would become the biggest cushion for them during the game.

But Street and then Samuels Keith pumped in six points between them to cut the Wayne margin to 13-10 as the period ended.

With Romulus's zone defense forcing the Zebras to take outside shots, the Eagles still had to solve the problem of Wayne's scoring duo of Robinson and Claiborne. Robinson and Claiborne each had five points and Horne had four in the second stanza, but the taller Romulus quintet was only giving the Zebras one shot and the Eagles swooped the boards. Street got 10 of his 17 points in the second period and he also ended up with 11 rebounds.

Horne sounds whistle on Belleville cage season

Belleville took Wayne right down to the final buzzer, and then some before losing to the host, 57-55, in double overtime in the first round of the Class A district basketball championships staged at Wayne Memorial.

"It was a great game. Our kids played great. Wayne played great and it was just an outstanding high school basketball game," said Belleville Coach Leon Birdyshaw whose club brought the season down on a 13-7 overall record.

"We had our chances," Birdyshaw continued, "but we just didn't capitalize on them."

Belleville had an eight point edge (45-37) after three periods but failed to hang on to their lead as Wayne's Mark Robinson pumped in nine points in the fourth period - seven (of eight) points coming off of clutch free throws. It was a Mark Claiborne free throw that tied the score at 52-all that forced the issue into overtime. The play also saw Belleville's Maurice Brantley depart from the game due to five personal fouls.

Birdyshaw later said that losing Brantley at that juncture was disastrous.

In the first extra period both teams managed to put three points on the board, the issue remaining unresolved.

It was left up to one of Wayne's "unsung heroes", Fred Horne, to break the deadlock. Horne connected on a 20-foot jumper with two seconds left on the clock to seal the victory for Coach Chuck Henry's Zebras.

"We figured Chuck (Chuck Henry, Wayne cage coach) would try to get the ball over to either Mark Robinson or Mark Claiborne," explained Birdyshaw, "so we concentrated on stopping them. Unfortunately Horne got the ball and made that fantastic shot."

Belleville got off to an excellent start as all-conference point guard, Kris Grantham, led the assault. After eight the Tigers had a 12-9 edge. Out-scoring their visitors 18-12 and disbanding their zone defense for a man-to-man, Wayne overcame the deficit and moved ahead 27-24 as the two teams headed into the locker room for the intermission.

When action resumed Belleville again took the initiative thanks to Grantham who pumped in nine points - thanks to some steals - that lifted the Tigers to a 21-10 advantage for the period and a 45-37 margin for three quarters.

The Tigers just couldn't hang on.

In his final appearance in a Belleville cage uniform, Grantham piled up 20 points, the game high. Teammate Maurice Brantley added 13, but wasn't around for the two crucial overtime periods. He fouled out in the last seconds of the fourth quarter.

Robinson and Claiborne - Wayne's usual 1-2 scoring punch again provided their team with double figures. They split 34 evenly between them.

(See TIGERS, page 6-B)

Wayne refused to quit.

In the third period Horne sparked a rally that came within a basket, 46-44, of deadlocking the score at the end of the third period. The untiring Horne scored two quick baskets sandwiched between Shawn Wimberly's contribution to make it a 39-37 ball game and a pair of free throws by Robinson tied the game at 39-all. Then, when Lewis Davis hit the front end of a one-and-one, Wayne again was in front 40-39.

But, not for long.

Street's three-point play lifted the Eagles to a 42-40 lead

We need spring sports schedules

With the high school basketball season heading for the stretch and with most prep winter sports wrapped up for the year, it's time to turn our thoughts to spring.

And the high school spring sports season.

But, before your community newspaper can do so it will need schedules and coaching lineups. Therefore, the Associated Newspapers' sports staff is urging local athletic directors to mail their spring schedules as soon as possible. If there has been a coaching change, please include the new coach and his home telephone number on the schedule. Thank you.

Chapman is named All-American

Doug Chapman, a Ferris State College sophomore from Belleville and a member of the Bulldog wrestling team, recently earned All-America standing with a third place finish in the 190-pound weight class at the NCAA Division II Championships staged in Edwardsville, Ill.

Chapman, in helping his FSC teammates to a seventh place finish in a field of 37 schools, wrestled his way to a 5-1 individual record. His only loss came against Eric Mittlestead of Cal State-Bakersfield, who is the top ranked wrestler in the country for both NCAA Division I and Division II.

Chapman's five victories included a 3-1 decision over Dean Wygal (Portland State, OR), a pin at 4:46 over No. 6 seed Paul Koenig (South Dakota State), a 10-8 decision over No. 2 seed Al Kilpatrick (Pembroke State, NC), a win by injury default over fifth seeded Dave Pippin (Nebraska-Omaha) and a 5-4 decision over Mike Arnold (Lake Superior State).

Chapman completed his season with a team-leading 31 wins against 14 losses. His third place NCAA finish is the second highest in the history of FSC wrestling.

and after Wimberly and Johnson traded baskets, Johnson connected again to move the champs to a 46-42 edge, then Wimberly came back and scored for the Zebras to again pull within one basket (46-44) as the horn sounded.

Wayne missed some crucial free throws in the final minutes of the game that helped in their demise. Although the game remained close and Wayne remained in striking distance, the Zebras could not overcome a five-point deficit throughout the last period and when Bonam sank two free throws with 33 seconds remaining, the handwriting was on the wall.

Johnson and Street wound up with 17 points apiece while sophomore Gravam Wilson, a 6-7 center, showed that he will be a key factor in area and Romulus basketball for the next two years.

Robinson ended his outstanding prep cage career with 18 points, while Claiborne and Wimberly each had 11 and Horne finished with 10.

"It's always disappointing to lose," said Wayne Coach Chuck Henry whose team brought the curtains down on an 18-5 season. "I felt that their (Romulus's) size presented us a problem, and we also missed some key free throws in that last period that proved costly."
